UNIVERSITY OF ALBERTA

This is a book about you.

You are different from everyone else.

When you were born, you were a brand-new person.

And you are a very important person, too.

You are important to many people — to your teacher and your friends and your family.

In some ways you may be like everyone else.

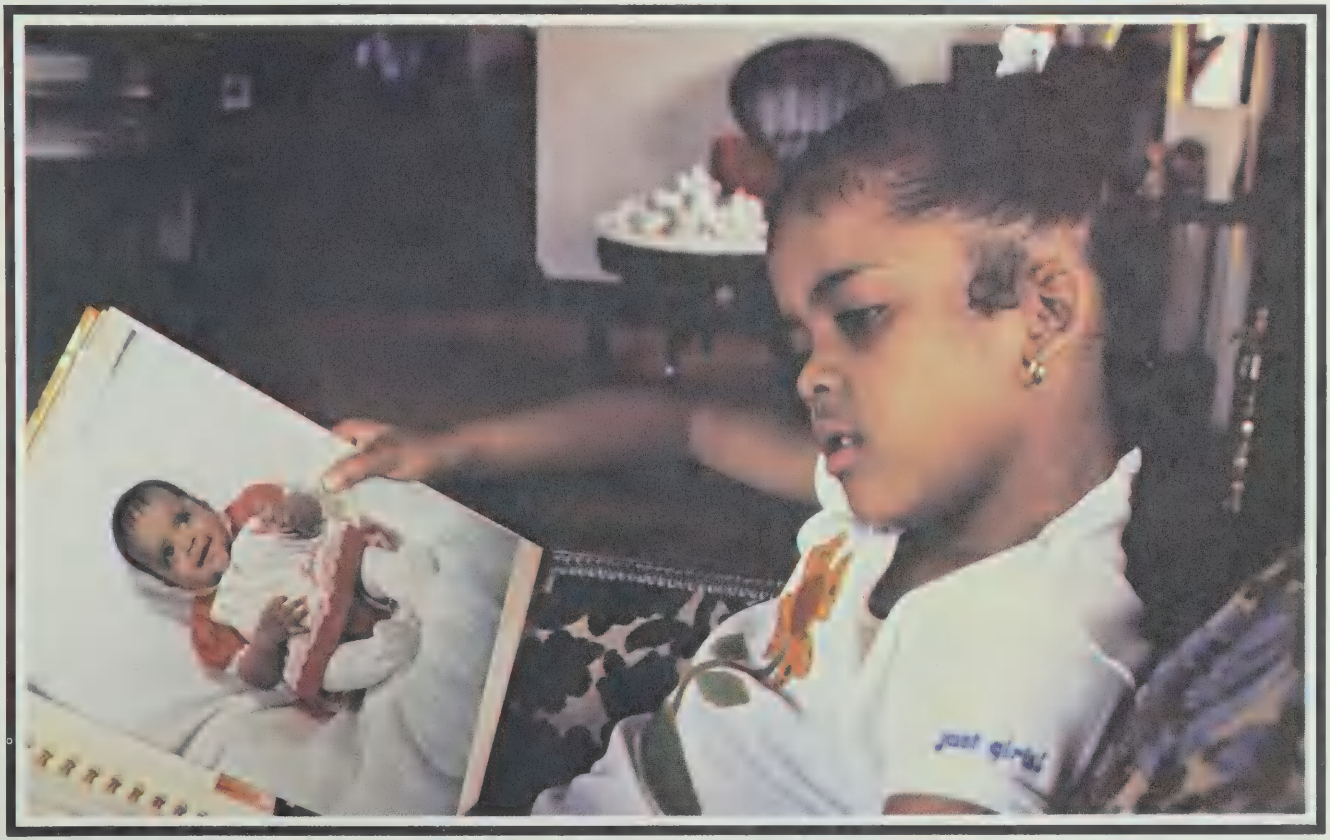
But in other ways you are completely different.

Just think of the many different things you like to do. What are some of them?

Each day you learn something new.
What have you learned today?

You think and say and feel new things.

You remember things that have happened to you, too.



You are growing all the time.

You are changing all the time.

Look at you. How are you special?
